

Give Them Rest Before Freshening

By F. W. BURNS
Extension Dairyman

AVOID the usual slump in milk production this summer. It is caused by a lack of feed when pastures begin to dry up. Temporary grazing crops such as Sudan grass or kudzu will help prevent a decline in milk production at this season. Additional grain at this season is also recommended if temporary pasture is not available.

FALL freshening cows should be given a rest period of 6 weeks before lactation periods. During the period the dairy cow is dry it will pay to feed sufficient grain to get her in good condition if the pasture is short. Cows that are in good condition at calving time will produce more milk during that lactation period than those that are allowed to freshen while thin.

REMEMBER that there is an increasing demand for high protein meals. Do not feed over 12% protein in the grain mixture to dairy cows on good permanent or temporary pastures. By saving protein this summer we will have more to use this winter when it will be badly needed.

ONE acre of temporary grazing crops such as crimson clover, oats or rye should be planted for each milk cow in Alabama this fall. Temporary grazing crops will do much to replace grain and hay this coming winter. Green feed is also valuable in increasing the vitamin A content of dairy products.

MILK and its products comprise over 25% of the 1700 lbs. of principal foods consumed each year by the average American. It is our duty to see that every dairy cow produces to the limit of her capacity during the coming winter to help meet our increased needs for dairy products.

The State Of Your Health

How Prevent Pellagra

PELLAGRA, a particularly serious health problem in the rural South, was believed for a considerable time to be communicated from the sick to the well like the usual "catching" diseases. However, it is now recognized to be entirely non-contagious. Improper diet, and that alone, appears to be solely responsible for it. If the food you eat contains the essential vitamins in sufficient amounts, you need have no fear of contracting it, no matter how closely you may associate with its victims. If your diet is lacking in these all-important vitamins, you are a potential victim, even if you never see a pellagriner from one year's end to another.

The pellagra-preventing vitamins are rather widely distributed in foods. Those especially rich in them are milk, liver, eggs, green and yellow vegetables, and shelled lima beans (both green and dried), green and dried soy beans (shelled), beet tops, broccoli, cheddar cheese, cottage cheese, chicken meat, codfish, collards, dried cowpeas, kale, mustard greens, peanuts, pecans, dried prunes, sardines, spinach and turnip greens. It will be noted that most of these products are readily available to Victory gardeners and those who keep cows. Until a comparatively short time ago, pure yeast was relied upon almost to the exclusion of everything else in the treatment of pellagra. This was usually administered at the rate of one-half ounce per patient per day over periods varying from six to ten weeks. More recently, however, gratifying success has followed the administration of niacin, formerly known as nicotinic acid. This was first used in the treatment of the familiar black tongue in dogs, which was found to be merely a canine form of pellagra. Treatment by this new method is simple and easy, and a complete cure is practically certain. Much experimental work in this field has been done in Birmingham by Dr. Tom Spies, using Alabama pellagrins.

Helpful Farm Facts

AT present there is no ceiling price on hatching eggs. This may be a good way to market high quality eggs.

There is no truth in rumors that the government has fixed regulations so that ginners and oil mills cannot trade cottonseed meal for cottonseed. They can trade if they want to.

The Alabama Experiment Station has found that farmers can produce eggs at a feed cost of 5 to 6 cents per dozen by feeding hens all the grain they want, giving them about 3 pounds of mash per 100 birds per day and grazing them on good clover.

Many Alabama livestock producers are successfully treating pink eye with sulfanilamide.

It is believed that a good way to reduce or entirely prevent hog cholera is to keep hogs on green grazing crops.

A good way to improve poultry flocks next year is to make arrangements for obtaining good R. O. P. males this winter. Indications are that they will be scarce and hard to obtain after New Year's day.

Women At Work

Hoofs and Hide.—"I believe we would have found some kind of way for canning the hoofs and hide of the animal if I had kept them." That's what Mrs. John Wilson, Covington County home, said demonstration club woman, when she viewed the variety of products canned from one beef.

Cakes Make Money.—"Each Saturday I sell around 40 pounds of homemade pound cake on the Valley Curb Market, Chambers County. The money from the sale of the cakes comes in mighty handy to make needed improvements in my home."—Mrs. Cal Sharpe.

Pullets Paid the Price.—Mrs. John Cogger's 488 laying pullets, together with the labor of Mr. Cogger and son, helped the Cogger family remodel a three-room house into a modern five-room house with two good-sized porches. The pullets paid for all the material bought to build the house, paint for the outside, and paper for the interior. The total cost was $362.30. "As my chickens make me a profit I plan to continue my home improvement project," states Mrs. Cogger.

No Hunger If Food Is Saved.—There shall be no hungry farm families in Covington County this winter, say home demonstration club women. Each club member has pledged to fill her own food budget and assist at least one other person who is not a club member to put up enough food for her family.

Mrs. Claude Goolsby and Mrs. Tom Morrison of the Damascus Club and Mrs. Jeff Fendley of the Louisa Club, in addition to their own food preservation work, assisted Negro families in their communities with canning fruits and vegetables.

A Paying-Off Hobby.—Mrs. Robert Horne, Baker Hill, Barbour County, has a hobby that pays off. Mrs. Horne upholsters spare time. Since last December she has made $184.50 working at her hobby. She also weaves bottoms in chairs. She has 6 children at home, yet she does her housework, cares for the children, and carries on with her hobby.

More Foods Through Variety.—Winston County farm women are not worrying about a change of food—they are adding variety of food—they are adding variety of food. VETERAN OF NAVY ON VISIT TO RELATIVES

Boatswain Lee Roy Kelley, of the U. S. Navy, veteran of many Southwest Pacific encounters, is spending a few days with relatives near Elba. He was on board U. S. S. Aaron Ward which was sunk at Guadalcanal on April 7 this year, during a Jap air raid in which 98 planes took part. The destroyer made history for itself during the Solomon Island and other Southwest Pacific battles in her thirteen months of service.

The Aaron Ward engaged the Jap fleet many times before she was lost. During the Guadalcanal battle in November last year she was credited with sinking a Jap cruiser and destroyer and damage to a battleship. She also sank many submarines and shot down several planes.

Boat's Kelley was awarded several decorations and citations, one being from the President. He was very fortunate during these encounters, having received no wounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelley have been spending several days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Kelley and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rushing. He was enroute to the East Coast for new assignment.

AUTO SALES REQUIRE TRANSFER CERTIFICATE

Mr. J. A. Wilkes, Chairman of the War Price and Rationing Board in New Brockton calls attention to the fact that after September 15 all sellers of used commercial motor vehicles will be required to file a certificate of transfer with the local board.

Mr. Wilkes stated that the requirement was necessary in order to eliminate certain black market operations which have been taking place in defiance of present OPA price ceilings on used trucks and other used motor vehicles. He stated that forms and information relative to this certificate of transfer would be available at the local board by Sept. 15 and warned that enforcement action would be necessary in case certificates are not filed.

Special emphasis was placed on the fact that the OPA regulations which established maximum prices for such used vehicles as trucks, buses and trailers, applied to individual sellers as well as dealers.

THE SIN OF MOSES AND AARON

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 20:1-13, 27, 28.
GOLDEN TEXT—He ye angry, and sin not—Ephesians 4:26.

Sin is a serious matter, and even though men in our day may not call it by its real name, it is as much here as it was in the days of Moses—and it is just as awfully sinful as ever.

Sin is universal; it appears not only among the people, but also among their leaders. God's dealing with it is on the basis of "greater privilege, greater responsibility." No leader, especially in God's cause, can expect special consideration of his weakness. He must meet God and answer for his sin.

I. The Unbelief of the People (vv. 1-10).

It is well to bear in mind that the people of Israel who were now at Kadesh-Barnea, on the border land of Canaan, had been here once before—40 years before. Here they had rebelled against God in unbelief because of the report of the spies concerning the land. Because of their unwillingness to take God at His word, they had been sent to wander 40 years in the wilderness until the complainers had died. Read that graphic and instructive story in Numbers 13 and 14.

Now they were back at Kadesh—and a new generation shows that the spirit of unbelief and distrust has a hold on humanity, and makes men like fathers.

They had run short of water. The spring which had served their fathers on the previous visit to Kadesh had run dry.

One would have supposed that all the mighty dealings of God in their deliverances over and over again, would have indicated the need of faith; but they had only a waiting criticism of God and His leaders.

II. The Answer—God's Power (vv. 6-8).

Moses and Aaron, now old men but still God's chosen leaders, took their sorrow to Him (v. 6). It was the right place to go, for power becometh unto the Lord (Ps. 62:11).

Instead of punishing the people for their unbelief, God calls upon His servant Moses to show them that He (God) is able. At a word from Moses, the rock would bring forth water before their eyes.

Is not that the perfect answer to all man's questioning and lack of faith—the revelation of the omnipotence of God?

But God's purpose is defeated (at least in a measure) by the

III. Unbelief of the Leaders (vv. 9-11).

Instead of taking their place as the servants and subordinates of God, Moses and Aaron claimed that they would provide water (v. 10). Instead of showing God's power by speaking to the rock, and His mercy in providing for the people, they uttered a rebuke; and then, by smiting the rock, took to themselves the honor that really belonged to God.

When called upon to act for God, they acted for themselves, and in their own name. They used for their own glory the power delegated to them by God. Let us beware that we do not fall into the same error.

Let us also note that if the punishment seems severe, we should recall that they had broken a type of Christ. Christ was the Rock. He was to be smitten at Calvary, that the water of life might flow forth. But He died once for sin (1 Cor. 10:4) and is not to be smitten again. We need now only speak to Him in faith and receive life.

In Exodus 17:6, Moses smote the rock, presenting the first half of the type foreshadowing the work of Christ; now he was to speak to it, fulfilling the type, and in unbelief he destroyed God's picture or type of redemption. It was a grievous sin.

IV. The Answer—Judgment (vv. 12, 13, 27, 28).

Moses and Aaron were not to be permitted to enter the promised land, because of their failure. No doubt it was true that their departure to be with the Lord was in a sense "far better" for them; and yet it cannot be denied that there was disappointment in not seeing the conclusion of their long and arduous labors.

The lesson is clear. We may serve God long and faithfully, but that is not any excuse for "letting down" in our closing years. We dare not presume, as though our intimate touch with God and place of leadership gave us an "inside track," a right to take it easy, spiritually or morally.

Sin is always sin; and it is especially grievous in one who has the privilege of high position and of power with God.

God buried His workmen; but His work went on. For Aaron there was his son Eleazar (v. 28). For Moses there was a Joshua, "full of the spirit of wisdom" (Deut. 34:9). It is always so. None of us is indispensable.

Wax the window sills after they have been painted. Such a finish will clean easily and rain splatters will not spot the surface.

LIBERTY NEWS

Elba, Sept. 7, 1943.
We just wonder how everyone is this morning.

All right, I hope. As for myself, I do not feel so well. Sunday a week ago I had a fall and hurt my right arm, which still pains me some.

Nearly broke it.

Mrs. Boland and I spent the week-end in Elba. Got home Monday evening. We spent the time with our daughter, Mrs. Hub Morrow, and family. It is fine to get off for a short time but it is fine to get back home, sweet home, for there is no place like home.

Just think of King Cotton being gathered. We see there is a small amount in.

We have good corn and peanuts may do very well, but it has been very dry, but we are having plenty of rain now.

We see lots of letters from the boys overseas. We long for peace.

The death angel has been visiting us. Mr. Joe Johnson passed away last week. We have lived close to him for many years. He is sleeping at Danley's Cross Roads. We bow in sorrow with his loved ones over their loss.

Mrs. Boland has lost a brother this year, also.

So many will hurry by and never stop to speak to us older ones. Do not forget you will soon be where you cannot go, so they will soon be with that same spoon. Let me say again, do not forget the old. With best wishes to all.
